

EMMAUEL CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

Reff: In service Training.

I am a student of the in-service program in Emmanuel Christian College, located twenty (20) miles Maridi road. I received information about the training through an advertisement over mass media and I applied through an application forms from Emmanuel model primary school in Yei.

The motive for writing this is to inform untrained teachers from various schools in South Sudan to come for the in service program in Emmanuel Christian College ECC. The college has well constructed structures with a conducive environment for learning and it has experienced lecturers from neighbouring countries like Kenya and Tanzania.

The In-Service training is taking place during holidays; this enables the untrained teachers to continue working while they undergo the training. Untrained teachers are encouraged to come and undergo the training, because they need to improve their skills of teaching so that they are able to act as professional teachers who can uplift the standard of their learners. The training enables them to identify their own competences. The aim of the training is to help teachers to teach their students in a better way.

Through the in service training I have gained new skills, such as using cooperative learning methods and group-work. I am able to make my learners participate in the lesson .The training enables me to make a lesson plan and schemes of work for my teaching. The other skills I obtained through the in service training is to give clear explanation of the content to the learners. It has also enabled me to improve my communication skills; the way I speak to the learners, techniques, volume and articulation.

The In Service program is helping teachers to improve their teaching-skills and will therefore improve the quality of education in South Sudan. I hereby encourage other untrained teachers in South Sudan to apply for the training, because the next intake will be in January 2013.
